'SAPA signals a Signpost Solution'

Signpost Solutions, the UK market leader in passive safety structures has been appointed as distributor by SAPA pole products for their new passively safe traffic signal pole.

Signpost Solutions already supply a number of leading signals providers with conventional steel signal poles and see the addition of an aluminium passive option as a logical step within this growing market sector.

The crash tested and fully approved passive signal pole mirrors the traditional steel version in design, length and head attachment making it simple to adopt and uniform alongside current schemes.

Signpost Solutions Marketing Director, Alan Nicholas was keen to highlight the new partnership and added 'SAPA are a forward thinking, innovative and extremely professional company and their new passive signal pole is a perfect fit for our current signal pole business and our continued developments within passive safety'.
